Oakland, CA, 10/11/12— Guidebook author Janet Chapple's latest field trip to Yellowstone August 21–September 4 gave her some new insights. Her trip included fact-checking at the Yellowstone Heritage and Research Center, driving most of the park roads, taking new pictures, talking to local experts, and waiting for old favorites Grand and Great Fountain Geysers to play. Here's a picture that won't be going into the book: In Black Sand Basin, where Iron Spring Creek meanders, Cliff Geyser's distinctive, squarish formation reaches gracefully over the creek.

Author Janet Chapple has written a new "nugget" of information to explain how you can use the maps, road logs, and lists of recommended sights and hikes in the guidebook to plan your trip to the world's first national park. Read "The features of Yellowstone Treasures."

Some Reader Comments

"Thank you for the best travel book I have ever read!

"Thank you so much for putting so much research and detail into your book; it should be required reading for everyone who visits Yellowstone!"

"Our compliments for your amazing work! I already read the book cover to cover when I was at home and last month, we used it as our tour guide when we visited Yellowstone National Park. It was an amazing travel companion."

Won Silver for travel books, 2010 Independent Book Publishers Association Benjamin Franklin Award for excellence in book publishing, regarded as one of the highest national honors for small and independent publishers. One judge wrote: "The third edition is a charm. I can't think of any way to improve this book; it is well-researched, easily accessible and shows great love of place."
